
BOOK THREE · THE RESILIENCE TRILOGY

Don't Get Caught with a Single Point of Failure

What My Grandkids Need to Know

by Stanton

A retired data-center operator applies the N+1 rule, always have one more than you need, to the whole household. Power, water, food, communication, security and medical preparedness, built from affordable gear tested in a real Las Vegas home. Not a book about the end of the world, but about getting a family through the rough patches.

- Practical preparedness without fear or pricey specialty gear
- Real equipment, tested at home, with photos
- The most complete book of the trilogy

FORMAT	RETAIL PRICE	ISBN	AMAZON ASIN
Paperback, 6 × 9 in	$14.99	9798186045861	B0H7YH8KFM

ABOUT THE AUTHOR

Stanton spent his career running data centers, the critical systems that keep the internet running. Now he applies the same redundancy thinking to food, water and family preparedness at his home in Las Vegas.

FOR BOOKSELLERS

Available to local and independent bookstores on consignment, with copies delivered in person around Las Vegas. To carry this book, email stanton@stantonwerks.com.